

No Bleed - The image (Left) has no bleed and is incorrect. When a file is used for print, if bleed is not added it will cause problems at the print finishing stage when guillotining or folding.

The screenshot to the (Right) is of the settings when saving a file with no bleed is included. This is incorrect.

Bleed - The image (Right) has bleed and is correct. When a file is used for print, it has to have a bleed of 3mm at least. The photo is the same size as the above image but, when it is saved it is exported with a 3mm bleed included. This helps the print finisher. If you are using a designer for your artworking these are the settings that should be used.
